Home Pre-Listing Tips to Increase Your Home Selling Price

People Look In Medicine Cabinets

When I helped my past clients, family, and friends sell a home and move, one of my roles is to lead, guide and protect them and the people they care about through every stage of a real estate transaction. This often means being realistic about opening our home to the public.

During the process of selling your house, upwards of 73 different people could go through your home before you receive an offer. The people you grant temporary access to your home include: other real estate agents, brokers, home inspectors, neighbors and prospective buyers.

Whenever other people have access to your house, we must be realistic. Call or text me and I'll give you the advice you need to adequately prepare your home for the world to see.
